SPIRIT OF THE MORNING PRESS The Union discusses Know Nothingism quoting Jefferson to show that he was an earn est advocate for requiring but the shortest term of residence in this country (five years) before granting naturalisation papers. The same paper also contains Secretary Marcy's reply to Mr. Molina, from which we quote sufficient to show the position assumed by the Government with reference to the Musquito coast colonisation project, headed by Colone! Kinney. Thus, after saying that as far as the Government are informed, the proposed expedition by no means contemplates a violation of our neutrality laws, Mr. Mar y adds:

"When the parties to this expedition shall have withdrawn from their allegiance to their own country, and voluntarily placed them selves within the jurisdiction of another power. their conduct must be in conformity to the new relations they have assumed, and they are responsible to the laws of the land in which they have sought domicil. The ques tion of validity of title to lands is, then, between them and other claimants, to be adjudged not by the government of the United States, but by the tribunals of the State within merely cut off, by becoming the foster-children which the dispute shall arise.

"Mr. Molina will understand, from the fore going remarks, that, while this Government does not feel called upon to interfere with the projected peaceful expeditions of its citizens scriptitious to the soil; slaves not merely to to other countries, it promptly disavows any intention of justifying those citizens who may contemplate a wilful violation of the rights and laws of a friendly nation.

"As, hewever, the Government of the United States has no official information in respect to the movements of the company alluded to, the undersigned would suggest to Mr. Molina the propriety of communicating the views of his Government upon this subject to the authorised agents of the company.

FRIGHTFUL RAVAGES OF THE CHOLERA AT MESSINA.-Private accounts from Mr. Behn, the United States Consul at Messina, give a frightful picture of the ravages of the cholera in that city, the population have been reduced by death and emigration to less than 50,000. No less than 22,000 persons died between the 22d of August and the 10th of September.

At an election for Councilmen, held at Portland, Oregon, the Democrats beat the combined force of Whigs and Know Nothings. At the special election for Councilmen the city of Portland polled 389 votes, and gave 85 majority for Dickinson, the Democratic candidate, over Know Nothings and Whigs.

A special election was held in the Baton Rouge Parish, La., on the 18th instant, for a representative in the State Legislature to fill the unexpired term of Hon. J. H. Boatner. when John Perkins, Esq., the Know Nothing candidate, was elected by a majority of 200 over R. L. Knox.

WASHINGTON NEWS AND GOSSIP.

The District of Columbia Judiciary Reform Bill.-We proceed, to-day, to notice the objections made before the committee and in the House to this bill. These were but two, we believe. The first was to the enactment of a code of laws, as proposed by section 20 [19,] without the direct action of the people. This which strikes out the obnoxious clause, and to Congress for its final sanction. And this, by the way, is a conclusive answer to those ascertained. If the people dislike the code framed by their own representatives, they will be sure to vote it down. But if the resolutions of the city government are to be taken as a true exponent of the wishes of the people, that result-so far, at least, as the people of be apprehended. When the bill under con sideration was brought forward, a resolution was introduced into our City Councils, instructing the committee appointed to represent the interests of the corporation before Congress, to call their attention to this subject; and that resolution was unanimously adopted. The other objection was a sort of argumen-tum ad misericordiam against the removal of the present judges. An attempt was made to elevate this to the dignity of a constitutional many instances, drawn from our legislative history, in which Congress has exercised a similar power, and apart from the decisions of rest. the Supreme Court, it seems to us that the argument ab inconveniente settles that question immediately and conclusively. Although our institutions may have had their origin in the Dark Ages-although every man within the scope of their influence may feel that they are pressing like some great Incubus upon us yet we can never get rid of them, because, for sooth, that would be unconstitutional! And if it is unconstitutional now, it will be unconstitutional always. And if that is true, let the people of this District no longer hug the de lusive phantom of hope, or vainly imagine that they have a share in the onward and upward destiny common to humanity. Not merely disfranchised; not merely ostracised from the community of those whose fathers fought with theirs for liberty and law; not of this great Republic, from that glorious heri tage of republican principles which ought to have been theirs; -they are slaves; slaves adthe high legislative department of the Government, but slaves to every petty judicial tyrann that may happen to be erected over them about the constitutional power of Congress to reorganize our judiciary system, we would refer him to the communication of the present based upon the regular permanent pay provenerable Chief Judge himself, to the House committee, in 1830, (H. Rep. 269, 21st Cong. 1st sess., p. 99, et seq.,) and also to the communication of one of the present Associate Judges, in the same document (p. 73, et seq.) And we of August, 31, 1852, to soldiers serving in may add that all the members of the bar, and Oregon, &c. The terms employed in the act other intelligent gentlemen of this community. who were addressed by that committee at that time, gave their opinion (if our memory is pay. correct) in favor of a reorganization of our judiciary. Mr. R. S. Coxe, prepared a bill for the organization of a court of chancery, and so, we think, did the learned judge (then a barrister) to whom we have just now alluded. Mr. Morfit was of the same opinion. The late F. S. Key, whose views upon this subject, as expressed at that time, were exceedingly conservative, proposed six changes, only one of which, by the by, was carried into effect. Among these desiderata we notice "; separate chancery court for the District."

But constitutional objection having failed, there was nothing left to fall back upon but an appeal to the sympathies of members of the House. We confess we were somewhat amused when the only gentleman who seriously Principalities, or for any other cause, Austria opposed the bill, our esteemed and respected should find herself at war with Russia, the al- friend from Massachusetts, after stating that there were reasons privately operating upon the gentleman from Maryland which impelled him at first to decline the labor of this investigation, confessed, in the same breath, that private and personal reasons, and, if we understood him correctly, such reasons alone, prompted him to enter the arena! Let those whose judgments are yet to determine the fate the re-establishment of peace without having of this measure inquire diligently into the motives and reasons and influences which have actuated, and will actuate, those who oppose it,-" reasons" not only of favor and affection towards those who are held up as its appointed victims, but in some cases, "reasons" of animosity and revenge towards its reputed suthors. We feel assured that the same high and controlling sense of public duty which has declared itself in the Heuse of Representatives so emphatically and so decisively, will be evinced in the other branch of Congress and that this bill, so republican and yet so liberal minded men of all parties.

Bogus Voting in Kansas .- General Whitfield, the Delegate from Kansas in the House day next. Pitz Henry Warren's chances are said to be of Representatives, denies in toto, we hear, the stories alleging that Missourians voted in the recent Kansas election who were not fairly entitled to vote there. In that first election, all citizens were very properly authorized to vote, whether they had been in the Territory a week or a year, provided they were willing to swear that they had made the necessary arrangements in the Territory to become citisens thereof. Thus, many of the Yankee Abolitionists who had their expenses paid thither by anti-slavery organizations in the East, to vote to suit the purposes of the organizations aforesaid, voted—though more or less of them had not been a week in the Territory. They designed becoming its citizens, and could truthfully swear to that intention on their part. So also many Missourians, living near the Territory, who had made their claims to lands in it in the first rush for choice locations, and had returned over the border to finish their arrangements for moving strove to and did effect them in season to get back in time to participate in the election Others who had not completed theirs, also came back and voted, being able to swear that their absence from the territory was but temporary, and that they had considered them selves citizens of the territory from the mo ment when they made their respective claimsnot citizens of Missouri, to which they had returned, only to complete the removal of their effects to Kansas. We are satisfied from all we can learn, that such only were the dewill be recollected that on the instant the lands of Kansas were thrown open for settlement, thousands rushed over the border to se-comparatively few moved bag and baggage in that rush, it being much more convenient and economical to complete their removal subsequently, and at their leisure. The denounced her favorite subject, and, after that, return voters were altogother of the large class who had rushed in with the first, and remained long enough to establish their right to land there, and then gone back to sell out a portion of their effects in Missouri, and move the balance

This is evidently the reason why Gev. Reed. er did not dream of refusing to Whitfield his certificate, though his sympathies were all for the member of his "suite," Fleniken, who was in the field. By the by, it might appear that Mr. Fleniken, the anti-slavery candidate, has left the Territory. We hear of him now in Pennsylvania, in the bosom of his family. We are, however, satisfied that, like the Missourians who went to their old homes prior to Washington are entitled to be heard—is not to the election, to prepare for the removal over of their families, Mr. F. simply postponed his journey to his own home to the same enduntil after the election—having further to go than the denounced Missourians, and more interest than any of them in remaining constantly on the ground up to election day. Gov. Reeder, according to some of the Missouri papers, is cutting a wide swath in the way of fancy town "operations," &c. It could do no harm if Congress would look into the truth of these newspaper accounts of the hand question. But that failed. Apart from the he is alleged to be taking in land speculations out there. It is due to him, if untrue, that all such stories concerning him should be set at

Humbug from Washington, No 1 .- A correspondent of the Tribune, writing from this city, under date of the 24th instant, reiterates the story of an intention on the part of the government to order the bombardment of the Dutch in the East Indies, if, on application there, they refuse to pay up the Gibson claim This writer, evidently the gentleman who started the story originally, now says that remonstrances from Northern merchants engaged in the East India trade alone prevented such an order from being given by the authorities

We nailed the statement to the counter when it first saw the light. We have satisfied ourselves that such an idea was never entertained by "the Government" or either part of it. Doubtless some one interested in the prosecution of the claim may have hoped to superinduce such action on the part of the American authorities. The notion, however, that the suggestion was ever seriously entertained, is, under the circumstances, too preposterous grown-up men to credit.

Three Months' Extra Pay for Re-Enlistallowed to soldiers for re-enlisting is to be vided by law, and should not include the temporary "per diem in addition to their present pay and allowances" provided by the law of September 28, 1850, and continued by the act are held to show that the additional per diem was designed to be a distinct matter from the

GEORGETOWN CORRESPONDENCE.

GEORGETOWN, Dee 28, 1854. Business generally, with us, for the last few days, has been rather inactive, and will probably so continue until after New Year's day. But few country wagons are coming in, and although the lower portion of our canal is again open, we hardly think it likely that many of the boatmen will venture out until the weather has the appearance of being somewhat settled, consequently there is very little produce of any kind arriving. The money market continues rather stringent, and the prospects for most classes of mechanics for the remainder of the winter is rather unfavorable. As yet, however, there is, so far as we are informed, no sign of any depreciation in the value of property or house rents, and as further proof of the prosperous condition of our city, there is not to our knowledge but one dwelling to let in it.

Another thing of which we can boast is the very small amount of real destitution among us, and this is greatly mitigated by the efforts of the Female Union Benevolent Association promptly furnishing those actually in want with fuel, clothes, &c., and hundreds are daily supplied with food by the benevolent inmates of Georgetown College and Convent of the Visitation.

THE GREAT MARBLE STATUE

THE DYING GLADIATOR, On exhibition at MORKISON'S BUILD. ING, 41 street, near Pa, avenue, from 9 o'clk a. m. until 10 p. m. daily. "A STATUE of surpassing merit. Its power and pathos are independent of time, place and condition. The charm and power o' the statue consist in the amazing truth with which the two great elements of humanity and mortality are delineated. The arrist gives us all the pathos and the tragedy of death without its ghastliness and Horror. We feel ourselves in the presence of that awful Power before whose ley sceptre all mortal distinctions are levelled. No statue was ever more marked by simplicity. Nothing has been done for effect. No vu gar applause is courted, and the decency and dignity of truth are scrupulously observed."—Hillard's Siz

"A wonderful production of art. Its simplicity is such that it does not strike at first: the admiration omes afterward, and in a tide sufficiently deep and strong. At the moment we behold the Dying Glade istor his agony is past. It is the moment of exhaustion, of faintness, of death."-Mrs. Klis.

This statue is indiscolubly associated with Byron's mmortal stanza: see before me the Gladistor lie: He leans upon his hand—his manly brow Consents to death, but conquers agony, And his droop'd head sinks gradually low-And through his side the last drops-ebbing slow

The arena swims around him-he is gone, Ere ceased the inhuman shout which hail'd the wretch who won. He heard it, but he heeded it not-his eyes Were with his heart, and that was far away; He reck'd not of the life he lost, nor prize; But where his rude hut by the Danube lay, There were his young barbarians all at play. There was their Dacian mother-he. their sire Butcher'd to make a Roman holiday-
